

MATT CLARK

About Matt

Long Bio:

Matt Clark is a speaker, coach and expert team strategist. His focus on the neuroscience of beliefs, coupled with his experience as a NASCAR championship Pit Crew Coach for drivers Jeff Gordon and Jimmie Johnson, gives him a unique perspective on mindset and performance.

Matt understands the challenges of imposter syndrome, developing leaders, building teams and achieving results in an extremely competitive environment. His passion is to help high performers build a championship mindset as well as helping business leaders develop teams that drive performance.

Along with doing time as an on air analyst for FOX Sports1, Matt has done a TEDx Talk and presented for AIRGAS International, CORNING USA, S&D Coffee Grand Canyon University and others. His personal and professional journey has given him valuable insights and experience in life and business.

Short Bio:

Matt Clark is a speaker, coach and expert team strategist. His experience as a NASCAR championship Pit Crew Coach for drivers Jeff Gordon and Jimmie Johnson, gives him a unique perspective on mindset and performance. Along with doing time as an on air analyst for FOX Sports1, Matt has done a TEDx Talk and has shared his experience and insights with major organizations. His passion is to help high performers build a championship mindset as well as helping business leaders develop teams that drive performance.

Alternate Bio:

Matt believes organizations can win when they focus on developing people and high functioning teams. He's an advocate of designing a culture that fosters collaboration and communication. His insights, experience and ability to understand how people communicate, make him a sought after speaker, coach and trainer. When Matt isn't geeking out on neuroscience and performance, you'll likely find him at the CrossFit gym gasping for his next breath.